President's Message

Stepping up to Leadership

- Too Busy?
- Not Convenient?
- Out of Comfort Zone?

"Life's most persistent and urgent question is, 'What are you doing for others?'" Martin Luther King Jr.

Have you ever been asked to do something that was not exactly what you had been preparing to do? Maybe a project at work was not in alignment with the career path that you imagined or maybe it was a need at your kids' school that pulled you in despite having no experience, OR your Dad talked you into being President of the Roswell Rotary Club. HAHA

There is something compelling about a life that unfolds not by design, but by duty, when a life is shaped less by ambition and more by answering the call when it comes. This week, we have the privilege of hearing from Georgia's Insurance and Safety Fire Commissioner John King, a man whose story reminds us that service is not a single decision, but a lifelong pattern of choices. Imagine a young man who first learns discipline not in a boardroom, but in uniform. A man who steps forward to serve his country, and through 40 years of military service, he rises to the position of Major General in the United States Army Reserve. In private life, he doesn't retreat from service, but he doubles down. He becomes a sheriff, a respected leader of his community, walking alongside the very people he is sworn to serve. But here is the twist: just when that chapter seems complete, the call comes again.

This time, it's not from a commander...it's from the Governor of Georgia, Brian Kemp and the year is 2019. The assignment is different, but the responsibility is just as significant: step into a statewide role that touches every family, every business, every individual in Georgia. It's a transition from boots on the ground to policy at the highest level, but the mission remains the same. Protect. Serve. Lead.

Today, that same commitment is evident in his leadership as Georgia's Insurance and Safety Fire Commissioner. In a role that blends regulation, consumer protection, and public safety, he continues to serve in ways that impact millions, while ensuring fair markets, protecting policyholders, and navigating the complexities of an ever-evolving insurance landscape. It's not always visible work, but it is essential work. And it is carried out with the same mindset that defined his earlier years: show up, do the job, and serve people well.

And perhaps that's where his story intersects most meaningfully with ours. Because if we're honest, not every call to serve arrives at a convenient time. Not every opportunity to lead is one we eagerly seek out. I'll admit when I stepped into the role of president of this club, I didn't approach it with perfect enthusiasm or a fully formed vision of what it would become. Like many of us, I had other priorities, other pressures, and maybe not the exact mindset I should have had on day one.

But something changes when others begin to rely on you. And in that moment, service stops being an idea and becomes a responsibility. That's what "Service Above Self" truly means. It's not reserved for just a few of us. It lives in each of us and in the way we respond when we are called, whether we planned for it or not. It's in the quiet decisions, the consistent effort, and the willingness to step forward when it would be easier to step back.

Because in the end, a life of service isn't built on titles—it's built on choices.

Sic Vos Non Vobis

We are pleased to welcome John F. King, Georgia's Insurance and Safety Fire Commissioner, as our speaker on April 9. Commissioner King was sworn into office on July 1, 2019, by Governor Brian Kemp, becoming the first Hispanic statewide official in Georgia's history. He was elected to a full four-year term in 2022 and continues to lead the state agency responsible for insurance regulation and fire safety. Commissioner King's career began in 1985 as an Atlanta police officer, where he served in specialized units including Red Dog and Organized Crime/Intelligence. In 1987, he received the Chief's Blue Star after being injured in the line of duty during a criminal attack involving a firearm. His law enforcement service also included assignments as a Task Force Agent with both the FBI and DEA. King later became Chief of Police for the City of Doraville, where he focused on community trust, multilingual accessibility, and youth crime-prevention initiatives. [read more]

The true "Service Above Self" spirit cannot be overstated, as Chris/Tracy Archer, Sid Disher, Leslie Bassett, Amy/Terry Taylor, Langdon, and Jim/Cheryl stepped up instantly to solve an impromptu crisis for one of our long-standing international water project partners in Panama's Darien jungle.

Villagers there depend on subsistence farming to feed their families, and small engine-powered dugout canoes to get crops to market. With crops failing and the old engine giving out, Landy C was desperate. He is a friend to our club and to Rotary. For years he has helped Rotarians bringing clean water and health to thousands of his fellow villagers. He is a hero to us and them.

Langdon first heard the need, and it took all of a day for these wonderful Rotarians to form an ad hoc international project, funding the $3,000 motor purchase. Langdon not only donated but flew to Panama with the cash, bought the engine, and rented a truck to deliver it five hours away in the jungle. Amazing teamwork from an amazing group we are all privileged to know.

In his thank you video (District 6900 newsletter) Landy specifically mentions Rotary, and how much we have meant to him, his family, and the people of the region. "For a Roswell Rotarian, there's no safer place on earth than among the thousands of grateful friends in the "world's most dangerous jungle" — Darien.

Thanks to these quiet people of true action. Help me thank them!
