Dr. Ben Arthur to Speak Thursday 3-11-25

Dr. Benjamin Arthur is a research scientist at the forefront of one of the most exciting discoveries of our times: the value of stem cells in medicinal treatment, prevention, and therapeutics.

He is a doctor who studied and worked at venerable institutions such as Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore, MD; The Mayo Clinic in Rochester MN; NYU in New York (Graduate studies in Applied Maths) The California Institute of Technology in Pasadena; and the University of Zurich in Switzerland, where he attained his doctoral degrees in molecular genetics and behavioral science.

Throughout his career the focus has been on health science research. After participating in a unique cloning project that revealed stem cells presented a promising pathway to natural Therapy, Dr. Arthur knew that his real future was not in traditional medicine, deemed as very limited in its efficacy and ridden with complications of severe adverse side-effects and burdensome regulations and high costs as a result of governmental regulatory agencies being in the pocket the Big Pharmaceutical Companies.

“In general, living things invest heavily in the survival of their offspring, to prevent extinction. This is true in both of the major biological kingdoms known to man, the plant and animal kingdoms. Humans belong to the animal kingdom and for the critical early phase of the life of their offspring what is later to be discarded as the afterbirth is their lifeline for survival. As such it appears to be endowed with fantastic regenerative potential that could be repurposed to address health issues and improve the quality of life. We are still discovering the gems it presents. I am thrilled to be part of it.”

Dr. Arthur notes that the regenerative therapy field is aimed at developing products and procedures that utilize naturally sourced products like stem cells to help repair, replace, or regenerate tissue and organs that have been damaged or diseased. By using the purest cells and preserving their capacity in a selective way, he believes he has the key to resolving many conditions-- from basic
